You have the right to decide for yourself when to start writing another article and when to take a break for another cup of coffee. Indeed, why not get up any light or dawn, if you can get a good night's sleep and do the same amount of work, but it is already much more productive. In addition, you are not tied to any office.

To write articles and sell them over the Internet, you only need a computer, access to the Internet and a positive attitude to work. And this means that you can work at home, in a cafe and even write another article, relaxing with a laptop by the pool on vacation! And, of course, the absence of direct bosses can be called an important advantage of such work. Only you will decide which customer is best for you to work with, and what topics of texts are preferable for you. How much can you earn? The average price for such work on the Internet is from 30 to 60 rubles per one thousand characters. In this case, the average author is able to write about twenty thousand characters a day. So it turns out that writing texts can earn at least 600 rubles a day (30 rubles. X 20 thousand characters), and this is at least 13,200 rubles per month (600 rubles. X 22 working days).

Of course, income largely depends on your desire and the speed of your work. So you will have a choice to earn as much as possible or by slightly straining to increase a little the family budget.

The texts are divided by gradation into 3 categories: Rewrite you are given a source (or you need to find it yourself), you need to sketch out a statement with a uniqueness above 90%. Particularly cunning people simply swap individual words or insert synonyms, several times checking the text for uniqueness, until 90% is obtained. At the same time, they "clog" the meaning and readability of the text neither the webmaster, nor the unfortunate copywriter needs it. Such content is filled with the same one-day garbage sites about which we spoke above. Such an article is worth 15-30 rubles for 1000 characters without spaces. SEO-copywriting here the webmaster needs you to logically include in the text a certain amount of the given keywords, while observing the uniqueness of 95%. This is also garbage text with slightly more stringent requirements, perhaps it will even be read by someone. Such texts account for up to 90% of the work of an average copywriter. It can cost 30-60 rubles per 1000 characters. High-quality copyright is an expensive order, a real text for people to read, I can set prices by individual agreement. Here, too, they may require the inclusion of some keywords, but in a small amount. This is a creative task, the main task here will be to beautifully reveal a given topic. A single article can cost a thousand rubles, or even several thousand. Uniqueness above 95% is implied by definition. Whoever gets such orders does not give how to get them, we will talk a little lower.
